Communicating with Your Child's Teacher

Here are some tips on how to kick-start communications with your child's new teacher:

- 1. A good partnership requires a clear understanding of how the parties should work together. Consider sharing these information with your child's teacher in order to establish a good partnership between both of you:
  - What language are you more comfortable conversing in?
  - How and when should the teacher contact you?
  - Your child's strengths, weaknesses and interests
  - Are there any concerns or issues that you may have?

Ask the teacher for the best way to contact him/her.

  - Adapt by being open to new experiences
  - Nurture an optimistic mindset
  - Step out of his or her comfort zone
  - Identify and challenge those worrying thoughts
  - Turn worry into action
  - Involve him or her in relaxing activities
  - Overcome stress by breaking down goals into smaller steps
  - Need a listening ear?

By having good home routines, you are setting your child up for life.

How can you partner us?

Be a consistent figure for him!

The learning coach can double up as a homework coach that should not only be saying "sit down and finish your work!" but one that patiently sits down and do the assignment/project together with the boy. This will help the boy to see that the coach really bothers about what the boy is doing.

Set up a conducive home environment for your child to learn effectively.
